CATALOGS OF AUDIOVISUAL MATERIALS: A GUIDE TO GOVERNMENT SOURCES

By

Doris Cruger Dale

Introduction

As all librarians know, the United States government is a prolific publisher of materials in all subjects from one-page brochures to multi-volume tomes. The government also produces audiovisual materials, especially 16mm films, but increasingly other formats as well. It is usually difficult to locate or retrieve these materials as they are listed in a variety of catalogs and bibliographies.

Over fifty of these catalogs and bibliographies have been identified and annotated for this bibliography. They vary in size, format, and purpose. A brochure may list only one film (entry 47) or it may list over 6,000 items (entry 16). Some of these catalogs are out of date and need to be revised. The oldest one listed is dated 1966 (entry 7), and the newest ones, of which there are many, are dated 1979. Some of the catalogs have been superseded, but government bibliographers are not always careful enough to indicate this fact (see notes in entries 5 and 12).

A catalog may list only audiovisual materials in one medium, such as 16mm films (for examples, see entries 5, 6, and 14); or a catalog may include all types of media (see entries 3, 8, 9, and 10).

A catalog or bibliography may include only government-produced or sponsored materials or it may include commercially-produced audiovisual materials as well. Some of the bibliographies include print materials. The National AudioVisual Center distributes many brochures and pamphlets describing audiovisual materials, and librarians should be on their mailing list.

In some instances the materials included in a bibliography have passed a critical assessment review (see entries 12 and 33); and sometimes it is stated that inclusion in a bibliography does not constitute an endorsement, or that one publication is not endorsed over another (entries 9, 32, and 43). Sometimes materials are specifically recommended (entry 42). However, in many cases, the criterion for inclusion seems simply to be that the materials have been produced by the government. In one instance (entry 48) it is stated that: "Review, evaluation and selection of the materials is the responsibility of the user."

Most of the films and other audiovisual materials are for sale or rent; some are available on free loan or on interlibrary loan (entry 51). Some materials are available only to specific groups (entries 14 and 46).

Many of these publications are no longer in print and therefore prices were not indicated. However, the Superintendent of Documents classification number has been included when available.

The Bibliography

1. U.S. Department of Agriculture. Office of Information. Photography Division.

   Color Filmstrips and Slide Sets of the United States Department of Agriculture.

   Miscellaneous Publication No. 1107. Rev. ed.
   Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1972. (A1.38:1107/3)

   These filmstrips and slide sets all in color cover many phases of agriculture and home economics. "They are designed for use in teaching better farm and home practices and for the dissemination of information on the programs and research activities of the Department." Lecture notes are furnished with the material unless the material is self-explanatory. Order information is included. The ninety filmstrips and slide sets are listed alphabetically by title under the following subject headings: agricultural economics, beautification, civil defense, conservation, cooperatives, farming, food, forestry, 4-H club activities, home economics, home gardening, housing, inspection and grading, marketing, nutrition, pesticides, recreation, school lunch, urban-rural balance, and miscellaneous. For each title the following information is given: set number, medium, price, and brief annotation. In many instances the titles are available in both a filmstrip and a mounted slide set. A numerical list by set number and an alphabetical list by title conclude this 13-page pamphlet.

2. U.S. Department of Agriculture. Office of Information. Motion Picture Service.

   Films. Agricultural Handbook No. 14.
   Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1968. (A1.76:14/968)

   The more than 300 film titles listed in this catalog have been produced by the Motion Picture Service, Office of Information, of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. They cover almost every important subject in the field of agriculture. Arranged in alphabetical order by title with brief annotations, the main listing is followed by a subject index. Distribution of these films has been entrusted to cooperating film libraries in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico. These film libraries are permitted to charge a small service fee to cover their operating costs. Films cleared for television use are indicated by the initials, "TV."

3. U.S. Department of Agriculture. National Agricultural Library. Food and Nutrition Information and Educational Materials Center.

Audiovisual Guide to the Catalog of the Food and Nutrition Information and Educational Materials Center. 2nd ed.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1977. (A17.22:Au2/977)

This guide includes: "Audiovisual aids of substantial interest to the school food service and nutrition education community. . . ." (p. ii) The FNIC lends nonprint media for two weeks only to six target groups: federal, state, county and city food service personnel; colleges and universities offering food service training courses; professional societies and research institutions in the school food service area; and selected libraries sharing reciprocal arrangements with FNIC. The main sections of the guide are: the bibliography section arranged by the accession number in reverse order (i.e., 553-76 is arranged first by 76 and then by 553), a subject index, personal author index, corporate author index, title index, and media index. An audiovisual glossary precedes the bibliography section. Each entry in the bibliography section has the following elements: accession number (used for ordering and in the indexes), title, format, publication information, physical description, date, LC call number, descriptor terms, and an informative abstract. The number of items included totals 848 in the following formats: 51 audiocassettes, 33 charts, 108 film loops, 192 filmstrips, 40 games, 31 kits, 189 motion pictures, 50 posters, 5 records, 12 show'n tell items, 72 slide sets, 3 study prints, 26 transparency sets, 32 videocassettes, and 4 miscellaneous items. Some of the materials are in Spanish but these are not listed separately.

4. U.S. Department of Commerce. National Bureau of Standards. NBS Film Catalog. Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1970. (C13.2:F48/970)

Films listed in this catalog are available on a loan basis at no cost to the borrower other than payment of return postage and insurance. Films are annotated, audience level is generally indicated, and they are grouped in three general subject areas: science, weights and measures, and dental research and techniques. They range from wide scope treatment of general scientific subjects to the training film with "how to" instructions.

5. U.S. Department of Commerce. National Bureau of Standards. Free Films from the National Bureau of Standards. Washington: NBS, 1978. (C13.16:1095)

The 16mm color sound films listed in this catalog are available on free loan to scientific and professional organizations, educational institutions, and nonprofit community organizations. All films have been reviewed by NBS researchers and the information has been deemed accurate and useful although some of the films are over twenty years old. The subject areas covered include general science (12 films), technical (12 films), and dental (8 films). Elements in each citation include the title, length, date, a brief annotation, and the audience level. Ten distributors over the U.S. are listed, and prints may also be purchased. Although there was no indication in this catalog, it probably supersedes the 1970 NBS Film Catalog (C13.2:F48/970).

6. U.S. Department of Energy. Lawrence Livermore Laboratory. Hazards Control Department. Safety Education and Training.

Safety Films Catalog, 1978-1979.

Washington: The Laboratory, 1978. (D1.2:Sa1)

This 14-page catalog describes 93 16mm safety films in the subject areas of auto/motorcycle, explosives, fire, general safety/first aid, industrial safety, and radiation which are on permanent file in the Hazards Control Film Library. "Anyone may arrange to borrow any film." (p. 3) A one-page index lists the films alphabetically by title under each subject area.

7. U.S. Department of Defense. Office of Civil Defense.

Civil Defense Motion Picture Catalog.

Rev. ed. Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1966. (D119.11:6/2)

This catalog contains a current list of public information films of the Office of Civil Defense. Only official OCD motion pictures produced by the OCD Audio-Visual Division or by independent sponsors in cooperation with OCD are included. For free loan of these films, it is necessary to contact the nearest Army Film Library (Audio-Visual Support Center).

8. U.S. Department of the Navy. Bureau of Naval Personnel. Chief of Chaplains.

Chaplains' Audio-Visual Catalog.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1978. (D208.2:C36/5)

"This audio-visual catalog lists all of the religious support resources, including films, slides, and filmstrips, provided by the Department of Defense." (p. [1]). The main part of the catalog is divided into the following categories: B. Behavioral and Social Sciences, B/12 Religion and Philosophy, B/12.1 Bible, B/12.2 Chaplain Duties, B/12.3 Family Counseling, B/12.4 Marriage Counseling, B/12.5 Moral Development, B/12.6 Religious Practices (General), B/12.61 Catholic, B/12.62 Jewish, B/12.63 Protestant. Each entry includes accession number, title, film number, medium physical description, date, and brief annotation. The letters DA indicate the film was sponsored by the Department of the Army, DN indicates Department of the Navy, and DF the Department of the Air Force. Films must be ordered from these services. The catalog includes a title index and a cross reference index from the film number to the category number and accession number.

9. U.S. Department of Energy. Assistant Secretary for Conservation and Solar Applications. Federal Programs Office.

The Resource File: Practical Publications for Energy Management: A Reference Guide to Handbooks, Curricula and Audiovisual Materials.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1978. (E1.28:HCP/M8656-01)

This volume is designed to be "an in-depth bibliography of action-oriented conservation publications." (p. 1) It is an expanded version of Practical Materials for Teaching Energy Management: A Resource File, the first edition, published in 1977. Section I describes primary references such as operations manuals, costing handbooks, and technical guidelines under the following categories: agricultural facilities and operations; commercial establishments: office buildings; industrials plants and processes: power generation; residential, health care institutions, other housing; transportation: mobile equipment; and films, filmstrips, videotapes. Section II describes supplementary resources under the headings: buildings and fixed facilities, transportation, and other DOE publications. There is a title index and a key word index (both with references to entry numbers). "Consistent with Federal policy, this catalog does not endorse one publication over another." (p. 4) The section on films, filmstrips, and videotapes includes 20 titles (16 of them 16mm films) arranged by date (1975-1, 1976-13, 1977-6). Title, producer, date, a brief description, medium designation, sale and rental price if applicable, and availability source are given for each entry.

10. U.S. Department of Energy. Assistant Secretary for Conservation and Solar Applications. Office of Marketing and Education.

Energy Education Materials Inventory: An Annotated Bibliography of Currently Available Materials, K-12, Published Prior to May, 1976. Vol. I. Springfield, VA.: National Technical Information Service, 1978. (E1.28:HCP/M8685-01)

This inventory "is a systematic listing of energy education materials [approximately 800 items] and reference sources suitable for use in elementary and secondary schools." (p. 1) Volume II scheduled for publication in the fall of 1979 will include materials produced from May 1976 (the closing date of Volume I) through December 1978. The inventory includes 27 audiocassettes and records, 275 16mm films and videocassettes, 98 filmstrips and 8 mm filmloops, 20 transparencies and slides, 15 games, and 17 kits. It consists of three parts : (1) media alphabetically by title under following formats: audiovisual, books, instructional materials, activities, and reference sources (blue pages); (2) titles by grade level and format (yellow pages); and (3) a subject guide arranged by format under broad subjects: alternative energy sources; biology, chemistry, physics and general science; energy conservation, consumption, and utilization; environmental-social aspects of energy technology; fossil fuels; materials; and policy and legislation. Full citations are included in the media section only and include the following elements: title, date, author, source name and address, cost, grade level, accompanying materials, and annotation.

11. U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Public Health Service. Consumer Protection and Environmental Health Service. National Air Pollution Control Administration.

Free Films on Air Pollution on Loan for Group Showing.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1969. (FS2.2:Ai7/30/969)

Eighteen annotated films are listed in this brief catalog. Although some of the films are commercially produced, they are all available on free loan from the National Medical Audiovisual Center.

12. U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Public Health Service. National Institute of Mental Health. National Clearinghouse for Mental Health Information.

Selected Mental Health Films: A Guide for Persons Responsible for Planning and Conducting Mental Health Education Programs in the Community or in Specialized Educational Settings.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1967. (FS2.22/15:M52/2)

Some of the films listed in this catalog are about the nature of mental illness, its treatment, and its control. Other films deal with certain mental health aspects of social problems. The films are first indexed by subject and are then listed alphabetically by title. The title entries include descriptive annotations. Suggested audiences are indicated. Films which are suggested for professional audiences only are marked with an asterisk. Films have been selected on the basis of four criteria: soundness, freshness, usefulness, and cinematic qualities. "The National Institute of Mental Health does not necessarily endorse the methods or products shown in these films." (p. 2) Most of the films listed can be obtained from film libraries maintained by state departments of public health. Sources are listed in two appendices: film sources by states (free sources and rental sources), and a list of primary distributors.

This bibliography is probably superseded by Selected Audiovisuals on Mental Health (Rockville, MD.: National Institute of Mental Health, 1975), however a letter to the Institute failed to bring clarification of this matter. This bibliography might be still useful because of its title arrangement and because the 1975 bibliography does not include a title index.

13. U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Bureau of Health Manpower. Division of Dental Health. Information Office.
Catalog: Publications, Reprints, Films, Exhibits.
Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1968. (FS2.24:D43)

Seventeen briefly annotated films are listed in this catalog. They are grouped under the following subjects: oral hygiene, fluoridation, dental assistants, continuing education, oral cancer, and dental care. All films are loaned for a two-week period without charge. Some films may be requested from the Division of Dental Health, and some from the National Medical Audiovisual Center.

14. U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Office of Education. Catalog of Captioned Films for the Deaf. Prepared by Anita A. Carpenter. Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1967. (FS5.234:34035-B)

This catalog of captioned films is divided into three sections. The films listed in section I are general interest films available to all registered users. They are available from three sources: Colorado School for the Deaf and Blind, Indiana State School for the Deaf, and the New York School for the Deaf. Section II lists educational film titles. These are available from educational film depositories serving certain areas,

Teacher training films listed in section III are available from the same sources as the films in section I. Groups of deaf persons wishing to make use of these films must register with the U.S. Office of Education. Films are annotated and indicate audience level.

15. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. U.S./Office of Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Development.

Publications and Films.

Washington: The Office, 1969. (FS17.17:J98)

Only three films are listed in this brief catalog: The Image Changers, Look Further Than Tomorrow, and The Quiet Summer. They are available on free loan from the Office of Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Development in the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

16. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

A Reference List of Audiovisual Materials Produced by the United States Government 1978.

Washington: NAC, 1978. (GS4.2:Au2/978)

This list is an up-to-date directory of over 6,000 selected titles of audiovisual materials produced by 175 federal agencies covering a wide range of subjects. It therefore supersedes the 1969 edition and the 1971 supplement of U.S. Government Films. Materials are available for sale or rent. Referrals are made to free loan distributors. The full bibliographical information for each title is given in the title section whereas in the earlier catalogs this information was in the subject section. To locate material by subject this catalog provides an outline of subject headings and a listing of the titles by subject in the subject section. Subjects are arranged in these broad categories: agriculture, atomic energy, aviation, biology, business and economics, chemistry, civics and government, dentistry, education, electricity, electronics, engineering, geography, health, history, humanities, industrial arts, marine, medicine, military science, physical science, physics, pollution, recreation, rehabilitation, safety, science, sociology, space programs, and surgery. Each individual title entry contains the following components: title, physical description of the material, organizations which produced and/or sponsored distribution of the material, NAC control number to use when ordering, availability (rental or sale), a brief description, series note, and television clearance information. The appendices (pp xiii-xlvi) include a list of sponsor/producer codes, rental and purchase policies, and the price lists by title number. This is a valuable reference source in spite of the fact that it is cumbersome to use. To find an up-to-date rental film on communism, for example, it is necessary to: (1) scan the outline of subject headings to find the main category under which this subject is placed (civics and government), (2) locate this heading and subheading in the subject section--no page numbers are given in the outline to help you, (3) make a list of the 12 titles included, (4) proceed to the title section to look up each of the 12 titles, read the descriptions, check the dates, and see which films are available for rent, and (5) copy down the title number and go to the price list section to obtain the rental price. Of the twelve titles listed the most recent production date was 1967; 4 were declared obsolete for use within the sponsoring agency; 6 were historical or considered of historical value and not reflecting current policies of the sponsoring agency; and the remaining two were available for sale only. A search under the subject of hospital safety revealed 5 titles, one produced in 1951, three in the 1960s, and one in 1976--a somewhat better showing.

17. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

Select List: Audiovisuals for Medical Education.

Washington: NAC, 1978. (GS4.17/5:978)

This brochure includes only a small sample of the medical and health related titles produced by the federal government and available for sale or loan from the National AudioVisual Center. The 51 titles in this list are arranged under the following subject headings: pathology, pediatrics, physiology, and forensic medicine. There are 28 slide sets and 23 videocassettes listed. Each entry includes title, format, date, title number for ordering, price, and brief annotation.

18. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

Select List: Introducing Footsteps.

Washington: NAC, 1979. (GS4.17/5:979)

The twenty programs in the series entitled Footsteps produced by the U.S. Office of Education are listed and annotated in this Select List along with nine other films on the related topics of parenting, child abuse, health and safety. Sale and rental prices are included.

19. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

Audiovisual Training Aids for Law Enforcement Social Work Produced by the U.S. Government.

Washington: NAC, 1979?

The audiovisual programs included in this brochure are exceptional productions which have been selected from more than 10,000 audiovisual materials developed by federal agencies. The 43 titles included are arranged under the following headings: general law enforcement, criminal detection/apprehension, the court system/criminal prosecution, correctional systems/rehabilitation, child abuse/juvenile delinquency, prevention/control of civil disorders, and police-community relations. There are 30 16mm films, 1 videocassette, and 12 filmstrips included. Each entry includes the following elements: title, physical description, federal agency producing film, title number for ordering from the National AudioVisual Center, rental and sale prices, and brief annotation.

20. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

AudioVisuals for Education: A Selected List of Films and Audiovisual Programs Produced by the U.S. Government for Curricular and Film Library Use.

Washington: NAC, 1978?

This small brochure lists 49 16mm films, 2 slide sets, and 1 multimedia kit appropriate for use in schools and libraries. All titles are annotated. They are arranged under the following subject headings: home economics/consumer education, history, National Park Service films, social sciences, space and science, energy, ecology and environmental studies, and special education. Both rental and sale prices are given. Included under the heading "Documentary Classics" are The Plow That Broke the Plains and The River.

21. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

Award Winners: Outstanding U.S. Government Films for Education.

Washington: NAC, 1979?

Thirty-one award-winning U.S. government-produced films are listed in this catalog under the following subjects: history (5 films), humanities (5), environmental studies (6), health (6), science (4), and space (5). For each film the following elements are included: title, length, b&w or color, date, producer, rental and sale price for both 16mm films and videocassettes, annotations, and awards won. The films range in date from 1942 to 1978.

22. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

Business/Government Management Information List.

Washington: NAC, 1978.

A brief listing of audiovisual materials (16mm films, videocassettes, slides, etc.) on the following subjects: civil rights, computer science and data processing, contracts, economy and conservation, education, government agencies, labor relations, management, materials handling, office procedures, personnel management, quality control, salesmanship and marketing, small business, and supervision. Audiovisual materials are indexed by title under the foregoing subjects. In the title section which follows, each title is listed in alphabetical order and the following elements are included in each entry: length, format, date, producer, title number, rental fee (for 16mm films only), sale price, and brief annotation.

23. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

Business Management & Training Films; and Other Audiovisuals Produced by the U.S. Government for Public Use.

Washington: NAC, 1979.

Audiovisual materials (the majority are 16mm films) are listed and annotated in this catalog under the following subjects: management training, office skills, salesmanship and marketing, security/safety, finance, job placement/personnel, equal employment opportunity/affirmative action, and labor relations. Films may be purchased or rented, and are available for free preview to educational institutions including public libraries.

24. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

Energy--It's Just Too Valuable to Waste.

Washington: NAC, 1979?

This poster brochure briefly describes six 16mm new color films about energy: Coal--The Other Energy, Reserved for Tommorrow, Energy Update, Solar Energy--The Great Adventure, Running on Empty--The Fuel Economy Challenge, and Energy--The American Experience.

25. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

Equal Justice Under Law.

Washington: NAC, 1977.

This brochure includes a brief description of a series of four 16mm films produced by WQED/Pittsburgh for PBS with funding by the Judicial Conference of the United States. The purpose of the series is "to inform general and educational audiences of the early history of the American court system as dramatized in four historic cases under Chief Justice John Marshall." The films are also available on videocassettes. The four cases are Marbury v. Madison, McCulloch v. Maryland, Gibbons v. Ogden, and United States v. Aaron Burr. A teaching guide accompanies each film. For preview and purchase, contact the National AudioVisual Center; for free loan contact Association Films.

26. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

Films Etc.

Washington: NAC, 1979.

"Titles in this special listing have been selected from a wide range of subjects in the Center's collection." (p. 5) Thirty items are listed under the following headings: International Communication Agency films, energy, social studies, career education, sex education, and general interest. Each entry includes the following elements: title, length, data, producer, format, order numbers, rental and sale prices, and awards won. Future issues of this publication are planned to inform readers of relevant government titles that are available.

27. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

The National Park Service Film Collection Distributed by the National Audio-Visual Center.

Washington: NAC, 1978?

The eighty educational films listed in this catalog "relate to the public the ecological and historical significance of our natural wonders, historical monuments, and recreational areas." (Preface) These programs are available in 16mm film and in videocassette, for sale or rental. The programs are grouped under the following categories: U.S. History/Great Americans; The American Revolution; The Constitution & Bill of Rights; Western Expansion; Early American Life; The Civil War; Earth Sciences; Recreation Areas & Seashores. A brief annotation accompanies each title along with length, date, and prices.

28. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

Social Issues Information List.

Washington: NAC, 1979?

A 15-page catalog of audiovisual materials arranged under the following groupings: aging, child abuse, death and bereavement, family planning/sex education, human relations, mental health/psychology, minorities, parenting, social work, and women. Each entry includes the following elements: title, format, date, producer, title number, rental and sale prices, and brief annotation.

29. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

Vocational/ Technical: A Select List of U.S. Government Produced Audiovisual Materials, 1978/79.

Washington: NAC, 1978.

This catalog is a selected listing of more than 800 films, filmstrips, audio/slide sets, and other audiovisual materials developed under the auspices of the U.S. Government over the last few years covering the major areas of technical training for vocational and industrial trade skills. Entries are arranged alphabetically by title under the following subject sections: auto mechanics, carpentry/woodworking, construction, drafting, electricity/electronics, photography, heating/air conditioning/refrigeration, metal work/welding/machine shop/benchwork, plumbing/pipefitting, and safety. The components of each individual title entry include: title, physical description including date, producer, sponsor, title number for ordering, sale price, descriptive note, series note, and additional notes. Appendices include: rental and purchase price policies, producer/sponsor codes, title index, and an order form.

30. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National AudioVisual Center.

Who's Out There?

Washington: NAC, 1979.

Seven outstanding NASA films on the mysteries of the universe are listed in this small brochure. The films listed are also available on videocassette, and they are available for preview or purchase. Each description includes a brief annotation. The titles are: Universe, Who's Out There?, Life Beyond Earth and the Mind of Man, Life?, Mars--Is There Life?, Mars and Beyond, and A Question of Life.

31. U.S. General Services Administration. National Archives and Records Service. National Archives.

Select Picture List: The American West, 1848-1912.

National Archives General Information Leaflet No. 23.
Washington: The Archives, 1972? (GS4.22:23)

This brief catalog lists 196 photographs selected from the records of federal agencies now on deposit in the National Archives. Of particular abundance are photographs of Arizona and Oklahoma. The photographs are arranged by subject and then chronologically. The quoted captions are those of the photographer or early owner. Bracketed material has been added by the compiler, Charlotte Palmer of the Audiovisual Archives Division. The name of the photographer and date are given if available. The index is arranged by state and refers to entry number. Pictures may be ordered in print, copy negative, or slide.

32. U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Public Health Service. National Institutes of Health. High Blood Pressure Information Center.

Catalog of Audio-Visual Aids in Hypertension.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1975. (HE20.3002:H99)

Audiovisual materials (110 titles) on hypertension are arranged first by audience: general public, patient education, and professional; secondly by format: films; video-tapes, cassettes; and slides, audio-tapes, cassettes; and thirdly by title. Each entry has been checked for its availability. "Listing of any item does not constitute an endorsement by the National High Blood Pressure Education Program of its accuracy of content, clarity or visual appeal." (p. vii) Each title is listed on a separate page and includes the following information: title, author, content (a brief description), description of physical format, recommended use, order number, source with address and telephone number, availability, and any additional material. Release date is not consistently included in the physical description.

33. U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Public Health Service. National Institutes of Health. National Library of Medicine.

National Library of Medicine AVLINE Catalog.

Bethesda, Md.: NLM, 1977. (HE20.3602:Au2/975-76)

"This catalog lists audiovisual items cataloged by the National Library of Medicine from November 1975 through December 1976 for its AVLINE (AudioVisuals on-LINE) data base." (p. v) All materials included are professionally reviewed for technical quality, currency, educational design, and accuracy and are considered suitable for instruction. This catalog will be updated by listings in the quarterly NLM Current Catalog. There are two sections: (1) an alphabetical subject section comprising the bulk of the volume, and (2) a short directory of procurement sources. Each entry includes the following elements: the main subject, related headings, subheadings, title, medium, producer, sale or loan source, physical description, series, audience level, review data, credits, NLM call number, prices, procurement sources, and an identification number. There is no title or author access in this catalog. Subject headings are taken from Medical Subject Headings (MeSH).

Catalog '77: Audiovisuals for the Health Scientist.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1977. (HE20.3608/4:977)

The titles included in this new edition which supersedes all previous editions are from the National Library of Medicine computerized data base, AVLINE (Audiovisuals-on-line). "All of the audiovisual materials in this data. base have been professionally reviewed for technical quality, currency, educational design, and accuracy." (p. v) The catalog lists 16mm motion pictures and videocassettes which are available on short-term loan for use in professional education programs in the health sciences only. The catalog is divided into two sections. In the subject section, audiovisuals are listed under specific terms selected from the NLM Medical Subject Headings (MeSH). Each subject entry includes main heading, related headings, subheading, and format, title, medium, producer, sale or loan source, date, physical description, audience, review data, learning method, credits, NLM call number, price, order number in parentheses, and a unique citation number. The full bibliographical citation also appears in the name/title section alphabetically by title and by names of persons listed under credits. The full citation includes, in addition to the information given in the subject section, a summary of abstract and subject headings assigned. Loans are made without charge. This catalog renders obsolete the Film Catalog 1966 issued by the U.S. Public Health Service Audiovisual Facility (FS2.36/2:966) and the Film Reference Guide for Medicine and Allied Sciences issued by the Federal Advisory Council on Medical Training Aids under the auspices of the National Medical Audiovisual Center (HE20.3608/2:970).

Selected Biomedical Audiovisuals Available for Purchase from National AudioVisual Center.

NMAC News, July 1977.
Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1977.

All titles in this catalog are listed in alphabetical order by format in three sections: 106 slides/tapes, 160 videotapes, and 303 motion pictures. Ordering information is given at the beginning of each section. In addition to the title the following elements are included for each entry: physical description, length, and price. Prices are not given for videotape cassettes or the 16mm motion pictures but most of these are available for preview before purchase. Four slide/tape packages might be useful to librarians: MEDLARS, Capabilities and Limitations; MEDLINE: An Introduction for Users; MEDLINE-In-Context; and On-Line MEDLARS Searching. The title MEDLARS On-Line--MEDLINE is available on videotape cassette.

National Library of Medicine Audiovisuals Catalog.

1977- Quarterly, with the 4th issue being the annual cumulation. (HE20.3609/4:977-)

Citations in this catalog are selected from the NLM AVLINE data base. Includes audiovisual materials cataloged by the NLM during the three-month period covered by each issue. The materials are not available from the NLM, but must be obtained from the sources cited in each entry. Two categories of audiovisual materials are included: (1) materials developed with specific instructional goals in the health-science education field which have passed a critical assessment for accuracy and quality (these references include abstracts), and (2) recordings of educational events not peer reviewed (no abstracts are included for these entries). The catalog is divided into three sections. The subject section is arranged by subject terms selected from MeSH (Medical Subject Headings). Each entry includes title, format, publication information, physical description, audience level, rating, credits, and all procurement sources. The name/title section includes full bibliographical information, the abstract, and review data. The procurement section gives the address of all the procurement sources.

Catalogue of FDA Publications and Audiovisual Materials for Consumers.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1977. (HE20.4016:P96)

This publication is divided into three sections: FDA Publications for Consumers (pp. 1-25), FDA Audiovisual Materials (pp. 26-27), and a list of 31 FDA Consumer Affairs Officers (pp. 28-29). Publications are grouped by format (brochures, consumer memos, flyers, and reprints) under six subject headings: food, drugs, electronic products that emit radiation, medical devices, cosmetics, and general and miscellaneous. Copies may be obtained through the nearest Consumer Affairs Officer. Each title includes a brief description and an order number. The section on audiovisual materials includes seven table-top exhibits, six quizmatic exhibits, three slide shows, and three films. To arrange for showing of these materials contact the nearest Consumer Affairs Officer.

Films and Filmstrips on Occupational Safety and Health.

Washington: U.S. Govt: Print. Off., 1975. (HE20.7102:F48)

This edition "provides a list of [142] loan-free audiovisual aids as well as a list of [54] organizations which offer rental and sale films and filmstrips." A broad subject index at the front of the pamphlet arranges all materials in alphabetical order by title under the following categories: chemicals; construction and plant safety; electricity; equipment; eyes and vision; falls, slips and backs; fire and explosion; general safety; hospitals and nursing; industrial hygiene; industrial medicine; laboratory safety; lead; mental health; mercury; mining; noise; pesticides; power tools; protective devices (ears, eyes and vision); radiation; skin; supervision; and welding. The 142 titles included are arranged in alphabetical order by title and the information given includes the medium, length, brief annotation, and source. Both commercially produced and government produced sources are included. Of the 142 titles, 115 are motion pictures, 21 are filmstrips, 5 are slide sets, and for 1 title the medium was not given. The addresses of the organizations providing rental or sale films and filmstrips dealing with occupational safety and health are given at the end of the pamphlet, but the titles they have available are not listed. The pamphlet is unpaged.

Selected Audiovisuals on Mental Health.

Rockville, MD: NIMH, 1975. (HE20.8108:Au2)

This catalog consists of abstracts of approximately 2,300 currently available audiovisual materials listed in the computer information system of the National Clearinghouse for Mental Health Information. Abstracts are listed under subjects which are arranged in alphabetical order from aging to treatment. Film titles follow in boldface type but are preceded by the name, address, and phone number of the distributor (from whom the materials must be ordered), and various code indicators for rental, sale, or free loan films. The six-digit number preceding the name of the distributor is an abstract accession number used to identify the citation and should not be used to order the film. Each entry includes a brief description. The runnung numbers at the top of each page are confusing as they are not sequential.

Subjects should have been used as running heads. This would have made location of subject headings easier and would have eliminated referring back to the table of contents. Of the eleven titles listed under schizophrenia, five were released in the 1960s and six in the 1970s. Appendices include: sources for free social welfare films, sources for low-cost film rental, and a list of commercial rental libraries. A major disadvantage of this bibliography is the lack of a title index. This bibliography probably supersedes Selected Mental Health Films: A Guide for Persons Responsible for Planning and Conducting Mental Health Education Programs in the Community or in Specialized Educational Settings (Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1967), but this fact is not included in the forword and a letter to the National Institute of Mental Health failed to bring clarification.

41. U.S. National Institute on Drug Abuse. Resource Center.
Audiovisual Catalog.
Rockville, MD: NIDA, 1978. (HE20.8202:Au8)

The materials in this catalog are listed alphabetically by title under the following format headings: films and filmstrips, film series, games, kits, records, tapes, and videorecords. The only information included under each title is the accession number by which any interested individual or group may borrow one item for a two-week period. It is evidently assumed that the borrower knows the content of each item.

Drug Abuse Prevention Films: A Multicultural Film Catalog.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1978. (HE20.8202:P92/5)

This publication was prepared by The Center for Multicultural Awareness, an agency "established by the National Institute on Drug Abuse as a resource center for programs concerned with preventing drug abuse among minority groups [Asian/Pacific Islanders, Blacks, Mexican Americans, Puerto Ricans, and Native Americans]." (p. v) The films in this list were selected because they deal with primary prevention and the promotion of personal and social growth. Most of the films are for young people. "We have emphasized those films which portray young people growing up and making choices about their lives in the context of their cultural/ethnic group." (p. v) A large asterisk means that the film is particularly recommended, a small asterisk means that the film is useful. Section II lists the 30 recommended films. Section III is composed of the subject index arranged in the following categories: Asian/Pacific Islander, Black, Mexican American, Native American, Puerto Rican, Multicultural, Films in Spanish, Drugs, Personal Values, Cultural Values, Cross Cultural, Life Skills, Alternatives, Parent Education, Staff Training. Each entry in this section has the following elements: title, producer/distributor, physical description, rental and purchase price, date, audience, cross references, and brief summary. Section IV is the alphabetical index by title. Section V is a list of other films reviewed which did not meet the criteria. Section VI is a bibliography of other sources of film reviews and evaluations. Section VII includes a list of distributors and addresses.

43. U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Public Health Service. Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration. National Clearinghouse for Alcohol Information.

In Focus: Alcohol and Alcoholism Media.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1977. (HE20.8302:F68)

The purpose of this publication is to list audiovisual materials available since 1960 on alcohol abuse and alcoholism. This listing is supplemented by a monthly media announcement service. "This publication does not necessarily contain all of the audiovisual materials on alcohol abuse and alcoholism, and the inclusion of materials in this publication does not in any way imply endorsement or approval by the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism." (p. i) An alphabetical index by title and indicating format precedes the main synopses section of the catalog (pp. 1-60). This section is also arranged by title and gives medium, date, length, television clearance information, audience, sale and rental costs, sale and rental distributor, and a brief summary. The synopses are follwed by these sections: a list of publications relating to media resources, where to write or call for help, and a subject area index. A reference guide describing the film listing format appears on the inside of both the front and back covers.

44. U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Administration for Children, Youth, and Families. Children's Bureau. National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect.

Child Abuse and Neglect Audiovisual Materials.

Washington: The Center, 1977. (HE23.1210:Au2)

This bibliography contains information about over 215 recent tapes, films, slides, multimedia packages and other audiovisual materials identified through a variety of sources. Only items actually reviewed are included. In the first section of this catalog, items are arranged by medium (films, filmstrips-tapes, slides-tapes, video materials, audio materials, multimedia packages and one miscellaneous item), and then by producer. The following elements are given for each item: accession number, producer, title, medium, year produced, distributor, price (rental and sale), and abstract. The other sections following this main section are: a producer index, a subject index (references are to titles and accession numbers), and a title index. Under the subject "Hot Line" seventeen titles were listed, eleven of which were produced in 1976, one in 1975, three in 1974, and one in 1973. The date was unknown for one title.

45. U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Office of Public Affairs. Film Fare: A Catalogue of Films and Filmstrips.
Washington: The Department, 1973. (HH1.2:F48/974)

All of the 22 films and filmstrips listed in this catalog were produced by HUD and are available on a free loan basis from the film libraries of the Modern Talking Picture Service whose addresses are listed at the back of this loose-leaf brochure. Entries are in alphabetical order by title with one title on each leaf. Each entry includes an annotation, the date, medium, and length. A one-page subject index is included. Two change notices indicate that distribution of ten of these titles has been suspended.

46. U.S. Department of Interior. Bureau of Indian Affairs.
Educational Film Catalog for Bureau of Indian Affairs Schools.
Brigham City, Utah: Bureauwide Film Service, 1979. (I20.2:F48)

After a brief table of contents and a half-page on how to order the films listed in the catalog, a subject matter outline of the following broad categories is given: American Indians, Biography, Cultural Arts, Guidance, Health, Home Economics, Industrial Arts, Language Arts, Mathematics, Physical Education, Safety, Science, Social Science, Training, and Vocations. Some of the main headings such as mathematics and health have no subdivisions; whereas both science and social science have nine subdivisions. In the subject section references are given only to the film titles (in alphabetical order) with an indication of grade level: P-primary, E-elementary, J-junior high, S-senior high, and T-training. The alphabetical-by-title listing of films comprises the bulk of this volume. The elements for each entry are: title, audience level, length, color or b&w, date, producer, and a brief annotation. Most of the films are commercially produced. There is no indication as to the criteria used for the inclusion of films in this list. The school number requirement in the film order blank indicates that the films are available only to Bureau of Indian Affairs schools as the title suggests. This point is, however, not made explicit in the prefatory pages.

47. U.S. Department of the Interior. Indian Arts and Crafts Board.
Native American Arts.
Washington: The Board, 1979?

A brief announcement describing a 16mm color, 20-minute sound film about the development of Native American arts in the United States. The film is for sale or rent by the National AudioVisual Center.

48. U.S. Department of Justice. Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. Office of Operations Support. Audiovisual Communications Division.

Criminal Justice Audiovisual Materials Directory. 3rd ed.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1978. (J1.2:Au2/978)

This directory "is designed to be a resource guide to those in the criminal justice field seeking materials for education, training and orientation." (Foreword) The directory is divided into the following subject categories: Courts, Police Techniques and Training, Prevention, Prisons and Rehabilitation/Corrections, and Public Education. Audiovisual materials are arranged by title within each subject category. Each entry includes title, accession number, brief summary or annotation, physical description, purchase cost, rental fee, producer, and distributor. Addresses of 146 producers and distrubutors are given at the end of the volume. There is no table of contents or title index. The user is warned in the foreward that: "Review, evaluation and selection of the materials is the responsibility of the user."

49. U.S. National Institute of Mental Health. National Clearinghouse for Drug Abuse Information.

Selected Drug Abuse Education Films.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1971. (PrEx13.8:F48/971)

Seventeen films which concern the nature of drug addiction, its treatment and control are listed in this brief catalog. Some of the films deal with drug abuse in relation to broader social issues such as poverty, inner city life and the alienation of youth. This is just a sample of the large number available on the subject. Most of the films are available from the National AudioVisual Center.

50. U.S. Department of State. Bureau of Public Affairs. Office of Media Services.

The History of U.S. Foreign Relations.

Washington: The Department, 1977.

A folded brochure which describes a four-part film series portraying the evolution of U.S. relations with foreign countries from the Revolution to the Bicentennial. A discussion guide accompanies each film. Each film is in color and is approximately one-half hour long. All of the films are available on free loan from the Department of State or for sale by the National AudioVisual Center.

51. U.S. Veterans Administration. Department of Medicine and Surgery. Office of Academic Affairs. Learning Resources Service. Library Division.

Union List of Audiovisuals in the Library Network of the Veterans Administration.

Washington: The Library, 1976. (VA1.20/2:Au2)

This listing contains approximately 3,500 entries of audiovisual materials in four standard formats (16mm films, audiocassettes, videocassettes, and 2x2 slide sets) held by the 160 libraries in the VA Library/Learning Resources Network (VALNET). Each library is identified by a holder code which consists of two digits, a slash, and three digits. For example, the holder code for the VA Hospital in Marion, Illinois is 21/609. Items listed are available on interlibrary loan. The first 141 pages of this list arrange all materials by subject and then alphabetically by title with information on producer, format, and date. To obtain the holder code, length, audience, summary, and subject headings, the user must refer to the alphabetical listing by title on pages 143-535. This list includes author/producer entries with see references to the titles. Each of these entries includes a code number or accession number which is unexplained. A name authority list is included on pages 537-574, and a subject heading authority list is included on pages 575-595.

52. U.S. Veterans Administration.

VA Film Catalog. VA Catalog No. 6.

Washington: U.S. Govt. Print. Off., 1977. (VA1.20/4:6/2)

This publication is a complete revision of the 1976 edition. "This catalog lists the motion picture films, filmstrips, slides, audiocassettes and videocassettes available on 'free loan' from the Veterans Administration Central Office Film Library . . . ." (p. 4) "The films are for use in support of medical and scientific research programs and studies, and for orientation, training and information." (p. v) Some films may be limited to VA use only and are so marked. Materials are listed under these broad subject categories: chaplain service, dentistry, health, medicine, personnel training, psychiatry and psychology, rehabilitation, safety, surgery, Veterans Administration: services and special ceremonies, and miscellaneous. Materials are arranged by title under subheadings in each of the general categories. An "Outline of Subject Headings and Subtopics" is included on p. viii. Each entry includes title, length, format, producer, date, title number, sometimes another number which is not explained, and a brief summary. An index by title is appended. Requests for permission to duplicate films are handled on an individual basis.

53. U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. Division of Technical Information Extension. 16mm Film Catalog: Popular Level.

1966-67 Reprinted with Additions. Oak Ridge, TN: The Commission, 1967. (Y3At7:2F48/5/966-67)

USAEC motion pictures listed in this catalog are available for free loan for public non-profit exhibition. An alphabetical index of film titles, which indicates the audience level, precedes the annotated listing. Group 1 indicates films suitable for the elementary school, group 2 for the junior and senior high school level, and group 3 for college and university level. Films are available from USAEC headquarters and field libraries. The annotated films are arranged by 17 subject categories. Additional films for group 3 audiences are listed in a separate catalog: 16mm Film Catalog: Professional Level.
